

United Way Central Alberta Kicks Off Its 52nd Campaign

Red Deer, Alberta – September 14, 2017 – United Way Central Alberta kicks off its 52nd community fundraising campaign this afternoon to a sea of almost 400 red-clad supporters. This motivating event is being presented by Johnston Ming Manning, LLP in partnership with the hosting Sheraton Red Deer Hotel.

The kick-off event marks the start of the four-month fundraising drive to support over 40 programs and services in three priority investment areas:

1. Education - Helping kids be all they can be,
2. Income - Moving people from poverty to possibility,
3. Wellness - Building strong and healthy communities.

During these challenging times in Alberta, United Way has adopted an appropriate theme for the campaign: “Improving lives locally.” Both the fundraising and community investment decisions are executed by teams of dedicated volunteers who support United Way’s approach of creating lasting positive community impact. Fundraising efforts are led by volunteer Campaign Cabinet Co-Chairs – this year, owner of Corquest, Linda Wilson and City of Red Deer Councillor Ken Johnston.

Highlights of this year’s kick-off include creative visual pieces that illustrate what “improving lives locally” means to United Way Central Alberta and our supporters– as well as moving, real-life stories told by people whose lives have been transformed by United Way’s support. Live social media coverage will keep people engaged for the duration of the event.

“ We are thrilled to say the money raised in central Alberta stays in Central Alberta” , said Ken Johnston. Your donation ensures that help is available and accessible to everyone when they need it. That includes all of us, and ultimately that means more lives are changed.”

Thanks to all participating sponsors for making this event possible, especially Johnston Ming Manning and the Sheraton, but also the Rebels Association, Enmax, Wilson Audio Visual and Dave Brunner Photography.
